

How many hours of English do students get in school and university in Japan?

.....

The man sees Mrs. Hayes. "Is everything okay, Jane?" he asks. "Why are the police here?" Mrs. Hayes says, "Sarah, this is my husband, Chris. This is our café." She says, "He works near here. He gets his sandwiches here every day." Sarah is very surprised. "Oh? He's your husband . . . !"

The Internet is a great place to get lots of information. In fact, if you aren't careful you might get information overload! When we use the Internet to get information, it's necessary to remember some very important things.

Anyone can put anything on the Internet, and anyone can say they are an expert, even if they aren't. How can you protect yourself from the fake experts and get information from the real ones? One way is to pay attention to the URL of the website you are visiting. A website that ends in .gov, for example, is a website that belongs to the government. The state of California website (www.ca.gov) ends in .gov, as does the website for the federal government (www.usa.gov).

Another website ending is .edu, which stands for education. The website of City College of San Francisco is www.ccsf.edu

Another common ending is .org. At first, .org (for organization) was for non-profit organizations or non-commercial groups, but more recently this is not necessarily true.

In the same way, .com was originally set up for commercial use.

A young girl was singing to a little boy.
 "Mommy! Mommy!" the boy cried.
 "Don't cry," the girl said. "Mommy is here."
 Then she began to sing again.
 She was very weak, but she tried to be a mother to the poor little boy.
 She held him in her arms like a real mother.
 "Mommy," the boy was still crying.
 "Be a good boy," said the girl.
 "You'll be all right." She held the boy.
 After a while the boy stopped crying.
 But the little mother did not stop singing.
 It was a sad lullaby.
 The girl's voice became weaker and weaker.
 Morning came and the sun rose, but the boy was still crying.
